1999
Title :365 Days of Celebration (http://www.hkartist.com)
Material : Steel, Zinc

365 Days of Celebration

My work is related to people. When audience walking over the zinc-made floor, the material produces noise like firecracker. The home page written on the crinkle zinc-made carpet is in fact a real home address designed by a local I.T. programmer (so much contribution from the Government).

On the other level. Audience are invited to walk on the carpet in order to push the counter clicker located on the metal plinth on that the number of participant will be recorded.

In a more symbolic sense firecracker represent celebration of event. Therefore under noises is made, ultimately such action symbolizes the launch of the first ever home page dedicated in promoting Hong Kong Art to the world.

The inevitably raises the question from much do we get from our local government in supporting the Arts.